Benefits of CSIE training

CSIE staff and our associate trainers are knowledgeable and experienced in delivering talks and facilitating training for teachers, learning supporters, local authority officers, other professionals involved in young people's education, parents and students. Our training is routinely praised for the level of interest and engagement it evokes, its positive and constructive impact, the clarity with which even complex issues are presented and the supportive manner in which participants are encouraged to examine their own beliefs and assumptions. CSIE training is competitively priced and offers excellent value for money.

Bespoke training

We are always pleased to offer bespoke training for schools, clusters of schools, other educational settings and/or local authorities. Contact us on 0117 3533150 or at training@csie.org.uk to see how we can help.

“Anti-bullying strategies for a rich and positive learning environment”

These workshops are for staff in primary and secondary schools who want to promote equality and eliminate discrimination. More than simply helping schools fulfil their legal duties or do well in an Ofsted inspection, these are practical, “hands on” workshops designed to be engaging and constructive.

The workshops highlight equality issues for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender (LGBT) and disabled members of the school community and address the most common types of bullying according to Ofsted. They explore proactive and reactive approaches to bullying and offer a clear framework for advancing equality in schools. Participants are supported to consider discrimination from a range of perspectives and take practical steps towards generating rich and positive learning environments from which everyone can benefit.

Cost: £90 + VAT (Total £108)

HALF PRICE OFFER: £45 +VAT (total £54)

to delegates who participate in a 30-minute focus group discussion. This will take place straight after the workshop, to explore further ways in which CSIE can help schools promote equality.

Who should attend

- teachers
- headteachers
- inclusion managers and other senior leadership staff
- learning supporters
- governors

Aims

- to help improve the experiences of LGBT and disabled members of the school community;
- to promote understanding of the public sector equality duty and its implications for schools;
- to provide clear strategies for developing rich and positive learning environments

Objectives

At the end of this workshop participants will be able to:

- recognise how the law protects LGBT & disabled people;
- be aware of the different ways in which disability is understood;
- develop confidence and language for speaking about LGBT and disability equality;
- describe stereotypes, prejudices and other barriers to learning and participation faced by LGBT and disabled people in schools;
- present to parents, staff, governors or inspectors a clear rationale for change;
- recognise how LGBT and disability equality are evaluated by Ofsted inspectors;
- demonstrate a clear response to Ofsted’s call to support the academic achievement and spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of disabled and LGBT pupils.
