

International project for support of inclusive education

„Get the ball rolling” or

Inclusion Week
2008

The international project Inclusion Week 2008 is a celebration of human diversity. It takes place in the week of 29th September – 5th October 2008 in all over Europe and further.

The main idea of Inclusion Week 2008

is to underline the importance of creating inclusive environments in our schools, to acknowledge diversity and to look for ways to overcome barriers to learning and participation in all school communities.

Pre-schools, schools, colleges and universities, non-government organisations (NGOs), arts bodies, government, commerce and other organisations in all countries are encouraged to join the Week and put on their events as part of this international celebration.

Together we want to support the move towards greater inclusion in educational settings as well as in our societies in general according to social policies that recognise, accommodate and celebrate human diversity.

Those interested in participating at the Inclusion Week can register at www.inclusion.rytmus.org and their activities will be added to the calendar of events if they embrace the spirit of the Week.

Wide use of the press and media to highlight effective practice in all countries will be a key part of the Week.
